

I have had many encounters with African Cape Buffalo in the last forty years. This one was the most recent, exciting and awesome experience; coming face-to-face with these powerful and dangerous animals. It was an afternoon at the Kruger National Park in South Africa that I came upon these beasts. What impressed me most about these two were the beautifully shaped horns. I so enjoyed doing this pastel, as it turned out as I envisioned it and hoped for; depicting the contrast of the softness of the environment and the power of the animals.
